Progressive Poetry

The Emporia Kansas Gazette prints the first progressive poetry. Written by the Gazette's futurist poet. About this new style poetry the Gazette says.

"We long have thought that forward-looking poets should quit writing verses that rhyme at the end of the line, and begin writing forward rhyming verses. So we have put our blacksmith on the job. He uses the DeLaval method of separating his ideas in his verse and we think he has a fairly successful product. We shall offer it to the allies, in the hope that it will end the war."

We reproduce here for the pleasure of the Eagle's poem lovers the first spasm of this progressive poetry which you will notice rhymes on the front end of the line. Who says there's nothing new under the sun?

"Near" Utopian Georgia.

Anniston Star

The Star delights in cleverness and it is because of this fact not because we are in sympathy with the writer's motive, that we give space on this page to an editorial by the Macon Telegraph entitled, "Utopian Alabama"

This article emanates from the "near" state of Georgia. It is an effort to poke fun at our prohibition laws, and we judge from this writer's viewpoint that his own home town as regards prohibition is more Utopian than is Alabama for Utopia was a place existing in name only, which is the status of prohibition in Georgia

Georgia became a "near" state when her own dearly beloved legislature was about to lay violent hands on her importations from Milwaukee, and that fluid is so very "near" her heart today that when her Sunday school students have to read about Bersheba in their Bibles they call it "near-bersheba" by sheer force of habit

It would be as impossible to have dinner at seven o'clock in Georgia as it would be to pluck [illegible] from the rainbow with which to decorate the table. It would have to be "near" seven and neither could [illegible] blond [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

And [illegible] with all the other instances cited by the Telegraph [illegible] [illegible] anything or [illegible] anywhere. She can't always [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] best to kick it down and keep moving forward or else to build it so high as to permanently [illegible] the [illegible] of the Demon Rum [illegible] Georgia [illegible] best to trade [illegible] [illegible] until you are at [illegible] [illegible] in twain with the hope that some day you will fall on one side or the other.

There is only one thing that

Georgia is in earnest about—the Frank case. There's no "near" business about that, for before [illegible] can get in society be elected to office or absolved of your sins [illegible] confession you've first got to take a firm, frank and unqualified stand in regard to the [illegible] of little Mary Phagan

As for the liquor question, however the near Empire State of the South is still a [illegible] of the [illegible] When they go to [illegible] on her at the prohibition con[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Demon Rum in Georgia [illegible] still and no such [illegible] merely a near [illegible] floundering in "near" rum

In fine, we note some very [illegible] distinction in Alabama [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that is the [illegible] of a state that is neither "wet" nor "dry."

A Financial Mind Cure

From the New York World

The history of the cotton loan fund is short and highly instructive. When it was subscribed last fall the South was glutted with its greatest crop and nobody [illegible] starvation prices that then prevailed. There was considerable opposition also to the creation of the fund. Conservatism said it would establish bad precedent. Calamity said it would make more trouble. Speculation said it would kill trade. Manufacturing said it would hurt business. Jurisprudence said it was contrary to law.

Nevertheless the fund was subscribed by bankers and business men to the amount of $134,000,000 and arrangements were made to loan the money to holders of cotton on the basis of about 6 cents a pound. When the fact became known the demand for cotton at home and abroad increased and this was followed by rising prices and rising prices in the [illegible] were accompanied by easier [illegible] conditions in the cotton belt so [illegible] everybody's surprise the [illegible] fund was not needed at all the total amount of loans made being only $28,000.

In this episode we may find proof that timidity, mossbackism and greed are sometimes economically as mischievous as famine pestilence and war. So long as there was no money to finance a crop that was as good as gold cotton rotted in the fields and whole states were threatened with ruin. The moment it was known that money had been provided to carry the staple, nobody wanted the money and everybody wanted the cotton

Most of our other commercial and industrial troubles might be cured in the same simple fashion if we had the will and the nerve

[illegible]rank Richter, No. 340 Fair [illegible] St., Winona, Minn., writes: [illegible]tarrh which principally located [illegible] head and stomach, I tried [illegible] remedies without success. I [illegible]veral doctors, but they were [illegible] to cure me. I read of Peruna [illegible] papers, and five bottles cured [illegible]

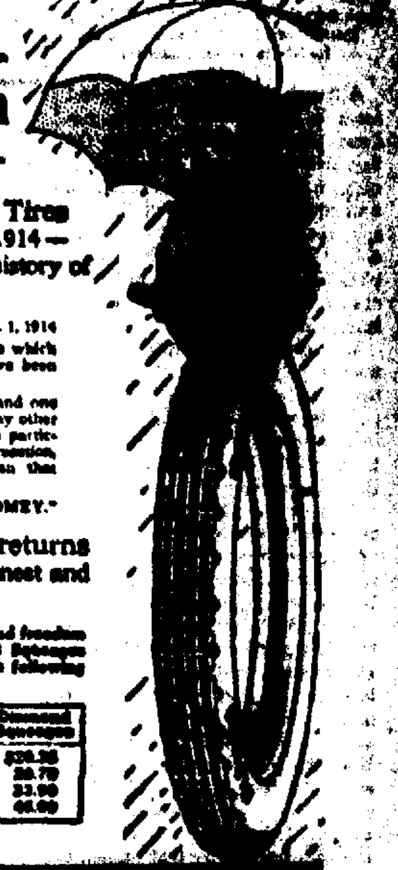

[illegible] a remedy for catarrh I take [illegible] in recommending Peruna [illegible]tarrh of the stomach. I know [illegible] it is to be afflicted with this [illegible] disease and consider it my [illegible] to say a word in behalf of the [illegible] which gave me such relief. [illegible] cured me, and I know it will [illegible] any one else who suffers from [illegible] disease. It gives me great [illegible] to testify to the curative [illegible] of this medicine. Peruna is [illegible] tested and frequently used [illegible], and for catarrh of the stomach it is unsurpassed."

[illegible]TY GIRLS ESCAPE WHEN DORMITORY BURNS

Chattanooga, Tenn. Feb. 18.—The girls' dormitory of the Southern Training School of the Seventh Day Adventists, at Graysville, was burned at 4 o'clock this morning, at an estimated loss of $12,000; insurance $3,000.

The dormiary was occupied by about fifty girls, all of whom escaped without injury except 3, who jumped from the second story window of the building, receiving only slight injuries.

This makes the second fire in educational institutions in Rhea county within a week's time, the boys' dormiary of the Grand View Normal Institute, twenty miles from Graysville, burning last week.

COMFORT FOR STRICKEN CITY

Antwerp's Plans for Improvements It is Hoped May Be Carried Out in the Future.

The "dock of concentration" at Antwerp was, by the action of the city authorities just prior to the declaration of war, to have been a reality in 1916. The plan, conceived ten years ago, is to concentrate at one great dock all the grain barges which serve as warehouses, and the floating elevators which furnish the business to Antwerp's 300 grain houses. These elevators, with eight new ones voted last year, are 12 in number and are owned by the municipality. They are pneumatic with a lift of 100 feet and one cares for a cargo of 5,000 tons in about three days which formerly detained a vessel there for 14 days when hand labor was employed. While hostilities may perhaps set the work back another decade, hope may be derived by Antwerp and other stricken cities by remembering how calamity often has a most stimulating effect upon industry—as in such notable cases as San Francisco, Baltimore, etc.—Scientific American.

To Deliver Papers

Madrid, Feb. 19.—All Spanish vessels were notified by the government today to stop and deliver their papers as soon as they are signaled by a submarine in British or French waters. This precautionary measure is designed to prevent the sinking of Spanish ships by the Germans by mistake.

Berlin, Feb. 19.—The German submarine U 2 which sank the British warship Pathfinder and also some British merchant ships in the Irish sea has returned undamaged to the base at Wilhelmshaven. The submarine commander, Captain Lieutenant Hersing has been decorated with the iron cross for bravery.

HOW TO MAKE THE CHEAPEST AND BEST COUGH REMEDY AT HOME

Most persons neglect a cough or cold for the principal reason that they either don't think it serious enough to go to a doctor, or don't know what good medicine to buy at a drug store, with the result that the cough or cold becomes deep-seated through this neglect and hangs on the whole winter—which might have otherwise been speedily cured, had Schiffmann's Concentrated Expectorant been used promptly.

This new remedy is so strongly concentrated that two ounces (50 cents' worth) make a full pint (16 oz.) of excellent cough medicine, by simply mixing it at home with one pint of granulated sugar and ½ pint of water. It makes a whole family supply, as much as would ordinarily cost from $2.00 to $3.00 for the same quantity of the old, ordinary ready-made kinds of doubtful merit. It is prepared from strictly harmless plants and is so pleasant that children like to take it and it can be given them with perfect safety as it positively contains no chloroform, opium, morphine, or other narcotics, as do most cough mixtures. It is altogether different from any other cough remedy. No risk whatever is run in buying this remedy as the druggist named below will refund money if it does not give perfect satisfaction or is not found the very best remedy you have ever used for [illegible] Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, [illegible] Coughs and Hoarseness. Every year at this season when thousands of doves are slaughtered in baited fields in violation of the law we will be pardoned for asking why is a game and fish law?—Dothan Eagle.

Whether or not the Dothan Eagle has, we have known such cases and those parties who were tried before the grand jury were turned loose on a small bond and that was all.

We cannot see why any man has not the right to raise birds on his own land and kill them just when he pleases to do so. If we were to feed our chickens three times a day and keep a few of them in a pen for "[illegible]" would the law say whether or not we killed them?

SEVERE PUNISHMENT

Of Mrs. Chappell, of Five Years' Standing, Relieved by Cardui.

Mt. Airy, N. C.—Mrs. Sarah M. Chappell of this town, says: "I suffered for five years with womanly troubles, also stomach troubles, and my punishment was more than any one could tell.

I tried most every kind of medicine, but none did me any good.

I read one day about Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I decided to try it. I had not taken but about six bottles until I was almost cured. It did me more good than all the other medicines I had tried, put together.

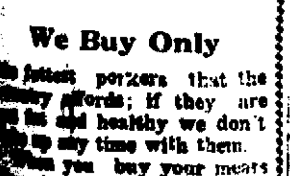

My friends began asking me why I looked so well, and I told them about Cardui. Several are now taking it."

Do you, lady reader, suffer from any of the ailments due to womanly trouble, such as headache, backache, sideache, sleeplessness, and that overwhelmingly tired feeling?

If so, let us urge you to give Cardui a trial. We feel confident it will help you, just as it has a million other women in the past half century.

Begin taking Cardui to-day. You won't regret it. All Druggists.

BEAR BIGGER THAN GRIZZLY

Bones of Cave Animal Found in La Brea Fields in California Amaze Scientists.

Frank S. Daggett, director of the museum of history, science and art at Exposition park, Los Angeles, announced that La Brea fields, where discoveries of the remains of prehistoric life have startled the scientific world, are not exhausted, as reported several months ago.

Daggett reported that the complete remains of a cave bear have been discovered in one of the most recent excavations. The animal in life was more than one-third larger than the largest grizzly bear of the present day, and the specimen when mounted will rank with the mounted skeletons of the imperial elephant and the ancient human discovered months ago.

According to Daggett the cave bear just found became buried in the asphalt pits of La Brea fields a quarter of a million years ago. [illegible]

[illegible] GUEST WAS ONE

[illegible]'s Patriotism and Chivalry [illegible] in Treatment of Unfortunate Mme. Loselle.

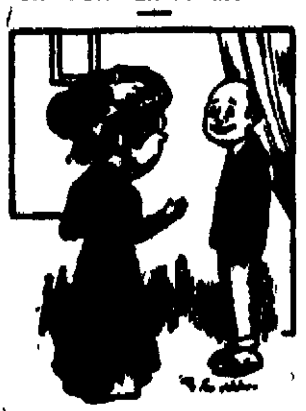

Although the sidewalk tourist had [illegible] in the midtown French restaurant for many years it was the first time he had ever seen M. Batreau, the manager, condescend to wait upon the table. And this despite the fact that his customer, an elderly woman attired cheaply in plain black, did not seem to be the one to "tip" extravagantly. It was inexplicable.

Who could she be, this sad-faced woman who scarcely tasted the daintics placed before her; who apparently was oblivious of the fact that Batreau was opening a bottle of the particular wine reserved for only the ultra-privileged?

Possibly some French gentlewoman in reduced circumstances. Perhaps some impoverished war refugee for whom Batreau worked in his pre-New York days. She may be—

"Ah, the lady?" responds Henri, the waiter, "she is Mme. Loselle. Her husband used to have the table two from the door before he went to fight for France. It was a saber cut at Soissons that killed him, they say. Now she comes to this restaurant every day for breakfast, luncheon and dinner—for which she pays nothing. It is Batreau's way of dealing with the country that refused to make him a soldier because he happened to have a weak heart. Ah, pardon me, I forget your coffee."—New York Times.

BRITAIN'S IRISH GENERALS.

For a full century the four most conspicuous British generals have been Irishmen. Wellington, the Iron Duke, had no peer in British military circles during the first half of the last century. He was Irish clear through.

When the victor at Waterloo moved off the stage, Viscount Wolseley and Earl Roberts were youngsters making their debut. These two achieved greater fame during the second half of the last century than any others. Both Irish, although Roberts was born in India.

Now Kitchener is the war lord of the British empire, and he comes from good old County Kerry, the essence of Irishdom.

HOW SMITH GOT BACK.

Senator Charles T. Townsend of Michigan smiled when reference was made to somnambulism. He said he was reminded of a story along that line.

A man named Jones was talking to his friend Brown one night, when the latter casually mentioned Smith, a mutual acquaintance.

"Makes me think of an experience Smith had a few weeks ago," laughed Jones. "He dreamed that he was an Indian, and getting out of bed, he wrapped a blanket around himself and started to walk through the woods. Woke up about three hours later and found himself ten miles from home and no car fare in sight."

"You don't mean it!" was the amazed rejoinder of Brown. "How in the world did he get back?"

"That was easy," was the cheerful reply of Jones. "He lay down under a tree, dreamed that he was an [illegible]

A VICTORY OF PEACE.

Wireless telegraphy recently won a victory of peace which is worth recording. French and American scientists after months of labor have at last determined the actual difference of time, and hence the actual distance between Paris and Washington—that is, between the Eiffel tower and the great wireless plant at Arlington. Their labor has shown that with instruments at hand scientists can determine the exact distance between any two points within wireless range on the surface of the earth. The French and American collaborators in the tests just completed feel elated because of their success in determining the time difference between two points separated by approximately 4,000 miles, because my previous test was for a distance of more than 600 miles. Wireless is continually adding to [illegible]

New Suits

If you have seen the ones we had Friday, you should come Monday and see the new ones received today. They are beautiful. The new materials, the new style coats and wide skirts. Each suit with some little touch of cords, buttons, Dresden silk, ball trimmings, etc, that go to make them attractive and different. That takes them away from the sameness of other suits.

Special numbers in these new ones at $12.50, $16.50 and $19.50

New Hats

Never have we shown hats that will compare with these new ones; in their loveliness and in the price. Think of a "nobby" "jaunty" shape, trimmed neat and pretty in flowers, ribbons or feathers and priced at $2.50 to $6.50? They will please you; will delight you.

George Washington's Birthday

How dumbfounded he would be at the profusion, originality and beauty of all these "new fangled" suits, dresses and hats. Yet he would kind of feel at home among these "Martha Washington" looking garments we are showing this Spring.

Tomorrow, his anniversary, it's a good day for those who instruct the young, to tell their pupils incidents in the life of young Washington, who, when still young became first among his countrymen. So also is Monday a good day for you to come to our store and get acquainted with all that's good in Spring wearables.

Woman's Missionary Study Class

The Woman's Missionary Study Class will meet Monday afternoon at three o'clock, with Mrs. F. J. Weathers.

HEADLAND AVE. B. Y. P. U.

The president of the Baptist Young People's Union of the Headland Avenue Baptist church has changed the meeting hour of the Union to 6:15 p. m. in the place of 6:00 p. m. as heretofore, now we want to insist that every member be on hand at 6:15 next Sunday night and to every one that should like to come and visit us or join us in this great work for God we want you to remember that you are always lovingly welcomed. But if you want to get the real good out of our programs you will have to be on time at 6:15 for we are striving hard to begin promptly at 6:15 and not at 6:30.

The officers and especially the president was greatly pleased to have so many present on last Sunday night and we want to assure every one that was present whether you are a member or not —that your presence was greatly appreciated and we want you to come and meet with us again.

We held a very interesting program last Sunday night and in conclusion the "Sunbeams" gave a short play directed by Mrs. Alice Kinsey, which was a rare treat and was enjoyed by every one.

Everyone, both old and young are cordially invited to attend these services. Our invitation to all is "Come where we will make you feel at home."

BURDEN BORNE BY SOLDIERS

Kit Varies in Weight According to the Service With Which He is Affiliated.

Nearly all the soldiers belonging to European armies have to carry about with them in the field a kit which ranges in weight from 38 to 61 pounds.

The equipment that the different soldiers carry about with them is very similar. It generally comprises a rifle and bayonet, with rags and so on for keeping them clean, an entrenching tool, and, of course, a number of rounds of ammunition. Then there are the various articles of clothing with changes, and a first-aid outfit. All the soldiers with one exception carry a knife, fork and spoon, water bottle and mess-tin.

The Russians, who are the exception, carry a wooden spoon only, which they keep in their boots. There is also a supply of food carried, and generally one or two reserve or emergency rations. Together with an overcoat, and the knapsack and similar accoutrements, the load to be carried is a considerable one.

The Russians carry most, the weight working out at 61 pounds, while the British, French and Germans come next in order, carrying weights of 47, 44 and 38 pounds respectively.

Faith.

No matter what may happen
Through the night
Of all the darkling struggle, grief
and care,
The saddened going of the little light,
The shadows in the stair,
The beating down of effort
Dusk of hope, and wrath
Of vanquished sunshine, brother—
Keep your faith!

Oh, let the old sweet comfort of it fall
Upon your heart as ever, never fear!
The curtain that engulfs you is no wall,
But through the rifts,
Of blowing could the sun with all its cheer
Tomorrow lifts
That curtain, and the clear
Blue skies are burning beautiful as old,
To die in twilight
In a sea of gold.

Whatever happens, do not lose,
my friend,
The simple faith you knew
In ways of childhood where the

Through leagues of dew,
And in the lanes of summer
Life still spills
Its golden honey of delightful
days,
Upon the valleys and the misty hills—
God smiles behind the haze,
And all the struggle,
All the effort borne,
To meet and master fate and life and death,
Sing out together in one born
ing breath—
And this the message that their singing saith—
Keep the faith!

Study Club Meeting—

The Dothan Study Club held a most interesting meeting Friday afternoon, with Mrs. T. M. Barnett as hostess.

The large living room of Mrs. Walker's home was attractively decorated in ferns. As has been the custom of the club for the winter, no refreshments were served.

The following program was enjoyed:

Roll Call: Responses from "Utopia."

Short Biography of William Caxton, William Tindell and Sir Thomas Moore, Mrs. L. G. Y. Baker.

Summary and Reading of Sir Thomas Moore's "Utopia," Mrs. R. H. Wells.

Reading and Story of Mary and Elizabeth, Miss Florrie Malone.

Miss McCarty Entertains—

Miss Julia McCarty entertain several of her friends yesterday evening at her home on North St. Andrews street. Various games were played, and refreshments were served. A most delightful evening was reported by all the young folks present.

A Toast to the "Old Maid."—

A toast is offered to the spinster. We meet a great many pleasant people in the world, but nowhere do we find a more satisfactory person than that elderly unmarried woman generally and somewhat disrespectfully known as the "old maid," and supposed to be afflicted with "nerves" and a cantankerous disposition. As a matter of fact she is frequently the sweetest, most self-forgetful of her sex. She usually walks, with tact and a loving heart, in other women's paths, lives in other women's homes, and rejoices in other women's joys, making them her own. The children adore her, for she becomes to them a sort of fairy god-mother, one who possesses all the tenderness of a mother without the extremes of maternal discipline. She loves to give children a "good time," and does it with extraordinary success. In household details, what a treasure! How many dinners owe their success to her, who receives no glory except the glory of ...ing! And in the ultimate trials of life, what a prop and solace she becomes! But it is to the young boy-lovers of the family that she exhibits the finest flower of her capacity for friendship. What a gift of understanding she seems to have! There is no difficulty she cannot dissipate, no fear she cannot lessen, no tender little half scared hope that she does not encourage to ... the other woman. It is always for something else that she is working, and perhaps it is this which gives her eyes a look that even the worst ... us unconsciously associate with all that is best and fairest in life. Let them make fun of her if they will, but could we do without her? Montgomery Advertiser.

Mr. and Mrs. Tew Entertain—

At their country residence two miles west of town Friday, February 19th, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Tew entertained quite a large number of their friends a delightful birthday dinner, it being Mr. Tew's 73rd birthday.

Misses Annie McIntyre and Verda Lee Jacobs of Ashford are the guests of Miss Sadie Bradford at 300 South Oates street.

TAKES FIRE IN HIS SLEEP

Green's Nap in Buggy Cost Him His Clothes, Watch, Cash and Vehicle.

Taking a nap in his buggy cost Robert Green, thirty-five, of Oldbridge, near here, $42 in cash, a gold watch and chain, a suit of clothes and a two-mile walk home.

Green had been to visit his brother in the country, and it was after midnight when he started to drive home. He placed his lighted lantern at his feet in the buggy, and as old Dan jogged along the country road Green dozed off. The lantern set fire to his trousers, and they had burned up to his knees before Green awoke. He jumped out and began to tear off his clothing. He was badly burned about the body before he had stripped off the blazing garments, and then he was amazed to discover that old Dan had kept right on toward home.

Green had to walk the two miles along the road only in his underclothing and his shoes. He had $42 in cash in his trousers, and a gold watch and chain in his vest, but the fire made short work of these.

When he reached home he found that the lantern had also set fire to the buggy and all that was left of it was the running gear.—New Brunswick (N. J.) Dispatch to the New York Sun.

WAR WAS PICNIC TO MAURICE

British Prince Killed Recently in France, Favorite of Queen Victoria.

The lamented Prince Maurice of Battenberg was Queen Victoria's youngest grandchild, and was such a great favorite with the queen that he passed the first few years of his life continuously in her company.

Just a few days before the prince's untimely death he wrote to a member of his family: "I am having the time of my life. Don't bother about me. It is like a picnic. I commandeered a chicken and cooked it with eggs. Tell Mrs. —— (the princess' cook), that it was better than anything she ever cooked."

Prince Maurice was the youngest son of Princess Henry of Battenberg and a first cousin of King George. He was leading his company of the King's Royal Rifles at Ypres when a shrapnel bullet from a bursting shell struck him and ended his life almost instantly.

Prince Maurice was twenty-three years old. He held the rank of lieutenant in the army. He was the only prince born in Balmoral castle. In fact, no other prince has been born in Scotland since 1600, when Charles I was born at Dunfermline.

REVOLVER IN VALISE HANDLE.

As a protection against those bold thieves who prey upon bank messengers and others carrying large sums of currency to and from the bank, an inventor of New York has patented a hand bag, in the handle of which a revolver is concealed, which may be aimed and fired readily without disengaging the hand from the handle of the bag.

HOW TO DRESS CHEAP.

"Let's drop into this restaurant."

"I don't believe I care to eat anything."

"Well, come in and get a new hat for your old one, anyway."

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT.

Bix—I suppose your brother stutters as badly as ever.

Dix—Oh, no; he's quite proficient at it now.—Boston Evening Transcript.

HER DESCRIPTION.

"Is the girl you married a good plain cook?"

"Not exactly; she is a pretty good one."

USUAL RESULT.

"The train I was in was telescoped."

"What happened?"

"I saw stars."

TYPICAL.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN BED AT SAVANNAH HOTEL

Savannah, Ga., Feb. 19.—Edward S. Mullins, a wealthy retired business man of Hyannisport, Mass., was found dead in bed at the DeSoto hotel this morning by his valet. Mr. Mullins had been in Savannah for several weeks and had been in poor health, but his death was entirely unexpected. The remains were turned over to Messrs. Feared Prejudice.

Down in one of the Southern States a colored man was haled into court on a charge of stealing chickens and in defending him his attorney challenged several of the jurors on the ground that they might be prejudiced, says the Philadelphia Telegraph.

"Are there any more of the jurors you wish to be challenged?" finally whispered the lawyer, leaning toward his client.

"No, sah," returned the client, negatively shaking his head, "but I t'ink yo' had bettah challenge dat jedge."

"The judge!" exclaimed the amazed lawyer. "What do you mean?"

"It am dis way boss," explained the negro. "I hab been up befo' dat jedge seberal times, an' I'se afeard dat he may be a leetle prejudiced agin' me."
